endangered species

Protect Me

Protect Me Hummi Humboldt penguin | 057113 | 35 CM

The Humboldt penguin is in its element in the cold Humboldt Current off the Pacific coast of South America – Peru and northern Chile, to be precise. It nests on land in guano cliffs, but is perfectly adapted to life in the water. Today this handsome penguin is legally protected from hunting. But intensive guano mining and the El Niño weather phenomenon are still taking their toll.

What would the earth be without animals? Countless species make their mark on our lives – and each one contributes to the richness of nature through its character, abilities and appearance. And each and every one is a valuable part of the ecosystem, helping to maintain the equilibrium between all forms of life. So we've come up with a new Steiff series that aims to call attention to endangered animal species.

Protect Me Kari hawksbill turtle | 068287 | 32 CM

With its elaborately patterned shell, the handsome hawksbill turtle glides majestically through the water. Often found in the vicinity of coral reefs, it can grow to 90 centimetres and weigh up to 75 kilograms. And for three reasons, it must constantly fear for its life: Its shell is made of genuine tortoiseshell, which is still a sought-after material for jewellery and handicrafts. Furthermore, its meat and eggs fetch a good price.

Protect Me Ozzi tiger cat | 064234 | 32 CM

In earlier times, the ocelot was a favourite prey of hunters. This was because the smallish wildcat has an especially attractive coat marked with dark spots and stripes. Thanks to the international convention protecting endangered species, today this danger has largely been averted.

soft cuddly friends

Meet the new kids in town from the proudest name in plush – the Soft Cuddly Friends from Steiff. Even while they wait patiently on the shop selves, they wish nothing more than to be your child's dearest companion and bestest friend.

With their ultra-soft plush, contemporary designs, and unmatched quality, they're the children's favorites that parents can appreciate, too. They're ready to be kissed, hugged, and cuddled – like all their famous "Button in Ear" cousins since 1880.

Exclusively from Steiff, the original creator of the Teddy bear.
